The Court sua sponte hereby amends the peremptory trial setting in the above-captioned case. At present, by oral order of this Court (March 23, 2007) , calendar call, jury selection and trial were peremptorily set to begin on October 9, 2007. The Court resets the schedule as follows;

1. Calendar call is now set for Monday, October 1, 2007, at 9:00 am.
2. At calendar call, the Court will notify defendants and counsel whether trial will commence on/about October 9 or on/about October 15.
3. If trial is to commence on/about October 9, then jury selection will either be at Calendar Call on October 1 or immediately before trial begins on/about October 9, depending on the availability of a jury pool.
4. If trial is to commence on/about October 15, then jury selection will occur immediately before trial begins on/about October 15.

For purposes of judicial and administrative economy and based on a heavy docket with other peremptory trials settings, numerous witnesses under subpoena, and numerous prospective jurors under summons, the ends of justice support the modest re-scheduling and continuance set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
